

Intercultural competence

Working in international teams

Seminar objective

Successful collaboration in international teams requires an awareness of how people perceive, feel, think and act in other cultures. A high level of empathy, cultural sensitivity and understanding are prerequisites for this. Participants will receive important suggestions and practical recommendations for working together in intercultural teams. Bring your experience from teamwork with you - and learn in this intercultural training how you can also successfully shape cooperation with international teams. Multinational environments offer you opportunities that you can develop further in this interactive training based on numerous practical examples. Your awareness of your own cultural understanding will be sharpened and you will learn how to avoid cultural "stumbling blocks". In this way, you will be sustainably successful in an intercultural environment.
